

Rector States Adult Education Permanent

"Adult Education is not a war emergency," stated the very Reverend Edward B. Bunn, S.J., president of Loyola College, in a recent interview in which he referred to the course in Labor Relations as especially important.

"Courses for adults are here to stay as a permanent function of the College in relation to the community," Father Bunn continued. "Other courses will be introduced as the need arises."

New Courses To Be Added

As examples of these other courses, Father Bunn cited mathematics and various modern languages, and courses in the great works of the masters through the ages, such as Homer, Virgil, Dante, Plato, Aristotle and St. Augustine.

The Labor Relations course referred to by Father Bunn traces the history of labor unions from the earliest times beginning with the principles of the dignity and inalienable rights of man, and free enterprise upon which labor relations are established.

Labor Dispute Procedure

The course also embraces the intricacies of the procedures for the settlement of labor disputes. Wage stabilization and post-war labor relations are discussed in detail.

The lectures are delivered by the Rev. Joseph Ayd, S.J., on Friday evenings in the former College building at Calvert and Madison Streets in downtown Baltimore.

Enrollments for this and any of the other courses in adult education are accepted through the President's office at Evergreen.

Five Other Courses

The other courses in adult education are: Oral English held on Monday evenings; Psychology held on Tuesdays; Effective Writing on Wednesday; History on Thursdays, and Theology on Fridays.

Research Chemist Devises Newly Designed Burette

A specially designed burette which will allow a greater degree of accuracy in chemical analysis, has just been devised by Dr. Wm. M. Thornton, now associated with Loyola College.

In an interview granted THE GREYHOUND, Dr. Thornton stated, "The use of this apparatus should appreciably reduce the amount of inherent error present in quantitative analysis. In my last article, Precise Measurement of Volume in Titrimetric Analysis, I have shown the advantages of this new method over that which is now being used."

Received Many Degrees

While a comparative stranger to Loyola, the doctor is by no means a stranger in the scientific field, having spent the past forty years in chemical research. Dr. Thornton

DIED IN SERVICE

Richard H. McCaffrey, '37, was killed in Sicily on December 6. His biography, along with full accounts of the ten other Loyola men who have died in service, will appear in the March 4 service issue of THE GREYHOUND.

Council Editing Weekly Bulletin

The Student Council has begun weekly publication of a one-page mimeographed newspaper. The first issue made its appearance on February 1, and will continue to be distributed every Tuesday. Its publication is being handled through James Garvey, Secretary of the Student Council.

"The purpose of the publication," said Dave Buchness, President of the Student Council, on announcing its issuance, "is to better acquaint the student body with the activities of the Council and with extra-curricular events around the school."

Explains Research

When asked the main theme of his research, Dr. Thornton replied, "For the past number of years, I have been constantly striving to reduce the error in analysis to a minimum. This search has, at present, led me into the study of the calibration of weights". Upon this topic, Dr. Thornton further stated, "In the entire world there exists but one true kilogram, the other 'copies' will vary minutely from this standard. In my study of this

Sophs Sponsor Welcome Dance For Freshmen

The Sophomore Class will sponsor the traditional Freshman Welcoming Dance in the gymnasium on Monday evening, February 21. The eve of Washington's Birthday has been chosen because no classes will be held the next day.

Johnny Grimm, who played at the last Freshman Welcoming Dance in July, will supply the music according to Laurence Molloy, President of the Sophomore Class. Tickets are $1.65 and no stags will be admitted. Dancing will be from nine until one. Dress informal.

Molloy is heading the committee now making final arrangements for the affair. He is handling financing of the dance. Under him on the Arrangement Committee are: Howard Strott, co-chairman, and James O'Neill. On the Orchestra Committee are Alexander Burke, co-chairman Joseph Thaler, and Stewart Johnson.

"We are under something of a handicap due to the small entering class," said the soph president, "but if we have good cooperation from all the classes, we should make this affair a great success."

Advance reports, he continued, indicate that this cooperation will not be wanting.

Dramatics Top Celebrations For Plebes

The Freshman Class has literally been "killed with kindness" this week, in traditional preparation for hazing.

Freshman Week will include the presentation of two plays by the Masque and Rapier Society on February 18. Upperclassmen are welcome to attend, according to Francis Locke, President of Dramatics, but the plays are especially for the freshmen. The dramas will begin at 8:30 and will be followed by musical entertainment prepared by the sophomores.

The Freshmen had a two-period assembly on the first day of class. Father Rector, the Dean and Freshman Dean, and the Athletic Director, addressed them on the regulations and obligations attendant on the various departments of the school.

The heads of the various extra-curricular activities addressed the Freshmen at this meeting.

A swimming meet between the Freshmen and the upperclassmen took place on the Thursday after class began. "Freshman Week" will end with the holding of the Freshmen Welcoming Dance on Monday, February 21.

Freshmen Awarded Six Scholarships

Six members of the new Freshman Class were awarded scholarships, it was announced by the Office of the Dean. The winners are: Raymond T. Doyle, Mt. St. Joseph's; George C. Mediary, Loyola High; Edward M. Rehak, Loyola High; John Reilly, Loyola High; William C. Rogers, Jr., Calvert Hall; Louis E. Schaffer, Baltimore City College.

The second Freshman Class to enter in February, began classes on February 1. There are 34 in the group, representing six High Schools in the state of Maryland.

The first year men have been selected on the basis of their High School records, and only those who will be able to keep up with the accelerated program have been admitted. For at least one quarter they will have a heavy schedule of class-hours, in order to complete the first term at the same time as the other classes.

Most of the students are mid-year graduates from accelerated High Schools. There are 22 representatives from Loyola High, four from Calvert Hall, three apiece from City and Mt. St. Joseph's, and one each from Polytechnic Institute and Hazelton Senior High.

This group constitutes the second February class in the history of the College. They will graduate in February, 1946. At present all the freshmen are taking the same courses and will decide upon either a Physics or Chemistry major on completion of their first year.

Freshmen Listed

Council Elects Officers; Buchness Discloses Plans

David Buchness, the recently elected president of the Student Council, has announced the outcome of the first Council meetings of the current year. "It is our wish", he declared, "to continue the publication in THE GREYHOUND of the undertakings and the progress of the Student Council as was begun last year.

"We have had three meetings to date", he continued, "and have discussed and given approval to a number of proposals which are of great importance to every student.

Officers Chosen

"At our first meeting, as was the custom, we held the election of officers. Richard Lerch was chosen vice-president, Laurence Molloy treasurer, and James Garvey secretary.

"This accomplished, we took the task of welcoming the incoming Freshmen. With the aid of Father Drane, the Freshman Dean, we planned Freshman Week. Notices concerning it will be found on the bulletin boards.

"Probably our most interesting undertaking for the students at present is the establishment of the Student Council newspaper, the details of which will be found elsewhere on this page.

"Another program of interest is that of making arrangements regarding the use of the swimming pool. Of late the pool has been closed, due mainly to lack of fuel. We are trying to arrange having it opened to the student body at all times.

Council Members Listed

If any student has any proposals that he thinks ought to be brought up in the Student Council, he should contact one of the following members: Richard Molloy, Donald Giblin, Frederick McCrum, Terrence Burke, Daniel Silverstein, Richard Lerch, James Garvey, Angelo Aleccie, Francis X. Locke, John H. Plunkett, Donald Mohler and Joseph Gessler."

Father Gannon Warns Of Undue Pessimism

The following are excerpts from the address delivered by the Reverend Robert I. Gannon, S. J., President of Fordham University, at the Ninety-Third Commencement Exercises on January 16.

"Twenty-five years ago there was an atmosphere of irrational optimism in the United States. We were winning a war to end all war in the best of all possible worlds. Now our attitude is one of irrational pessimism, but it springs from the same source as our former mood. Both are parts of our inheritance from the Naturalism of the Nineteenth Century which even in its decay is still asking 'Who made man?' and answering 'No one. He just happened'. 'What did he happen for?' 'He happened for his own health, culture and comfort'.

"Twenty-five years ago people still thought that there was some validity in that sort of catechism. Now they are beginning to wonder. It is beginning to dawn on them that their smart ideas are getting us nowhere, and very rapidly at that. They are beginning to realize that if there is nothing to live for but health, culture and comfort, life is not worth living. For that would mean that the vast majority of men could never even hope for even a shadow of happiness and no one could expect the full reality. In living for our own health, culture and comfort we are living for death. We are living for the world that Christ refused to pray for, and that world has been dead for thousands of years."

He then pointed out the necessity of finding a solution for the current pessimism in terms that can be grasped by people who have not been to church for a generation.

"President Roosevelt, who coins phrases with a grace and ease second only to his friend, Mr. Churchill, has said that our country must be an arsenal not only for arms but also for spiritual values. The despairing might say that no one can give what he hasn't got, but we are not the despairing kind. So reaching around in the depths of the American character we can get hold of a common virtue, 'the will to live'. That is deep down in every one of us—the will not merely to exist and endure but the will to live a full intellectual and spiritual life, a determination which must be grounded in an optimism that is at least rational. The old irrational type that had us chasing rainbows and talking evolution and progress twenty-five years ago would do the world more harm than good today. What we need is an optimism that will come to grips with the spirit of modern culture—"the spirit of despair".

He acknowledged the fact that each generation tends to exaggerate its own difficulties but, granted that, our situation was serious enough. In spite of our assurance of victory there was, he said, great uncertainty everywhere. The financial situation, leading up to a budget of $100,000,000,000 was disturbing, the educational confusion was worse than the financial, but the worst of all was the chaos in the social field. "This seems like a paradoxical way to develop the theme of optimism, except to a radiant optimist. For such a man is a realist. He can face the worst and keep smiling. He knows as much about trouble as the pessimist does. More, in fact. The pessimist merely sees a disaster—the rational optimist sees through it to what

Renowned Educator

The Reverend Robert I. Gannon, S.J., has been President of Fordham University since 1936. He received his Master of Arts (Cantab.) from Christ's College, Cambridge, and he is also a Doctor of Sacred Theology.

In 1920, Father Gannon instituted the Fordham Playshop and wrote a text book on the One-Act Play, in the same year. He was prominent in the Little Theatre Movement and received the New York award for distinguished service in education. Father Gannon reopened St. Peter's College in Jersey City and founded the Hudson School of Commerce and Finance.

lies beyond. You and I, my dear men of Loyola, are not mere rational optimists, we are supernatural optimists, full of not only Faith and Charity, but of Hope! Our optimism is not built on any delusion that all's right with the world but merely that God's in his heaven, which is of course a very different thing. We realize that times are very often out of joint, so often that every succeeding generation thinks its own the worst. We realize that as far as progress is concerned, there is as much devolution as evolution; that aside from the grace of God man is just as dirty as he ever was. We realize that there are plenty of clouds in life that have no silver lining except what comes to them from the white radiance of eternity. We realize that there are plenty of roads that have no turning this side of the grave. We have not the heart to tell every poor man we meet that his ship will surely come in some day because we know that it probably will not; most ships never do; most men die uncomfortably poor. And yet, we are optimists, supernatural optimists. We are able to look things right in the face and say: Life is bitter; of course it is. Life is a warfare. But who ever said that this world with its weeks and months and years of heartbreaks and humiliations and monotony—who ever said that this was the whole story? Only the fool who hath said in his heart—"There is no God".

"Individual historians like Spengler can be gloomy enough to spoil even a graduation. Anyone who takes them seriously will want to build an ark, pull down the hatch and ride the dark flood alone. But if you go to the well-spring of history itself you will find it a source of at least rational optimism because it glows with the great mystery of eternal spring. History is full of Resurrection.

"Old Lupus of Ferriere, the great gentleman and scholar of the 9th Century, noting in his research work the persistent return of literary excellence after a period of chaos, coined a rather lovely phrase—"Reviridicentia litterarum", 'the growing green again of letters'. Let us, then, as rational optimists, quietly anticipate the growing green again of our civilization and as supernatural optimists keep our eyes fixed on the Ultimate Perfection which is our destiny."

Giblin Elected Junior Prexy

The Junior class held nominations and elections for class officers recently. In the elections held on January 27, the following were successful:

Donald Giblin, President
Richard Lerch, Vice-President
James Garvey, Secretary
Angelo Alecce, Treasurer

Giblin is serving his second term as President of his class. Lerch is Vice-President of the Student Council and Prefect of the Sodality. James Garvey is Secretary of the Student Council and Chairman of I. R. C. Angelo Alecce is President of the Chemistry Club.

Besides the above, the following were nominated for election:

Dodd S. Carr, Joseph Gessler, and John Kernan.

Jet Propulsion Speeds Planes

Behind General H. H. Arnold's recent announcement that fighter planes, powered by American-built jet propulsion engines, had successfully passed experimental tests and would soon be in production, is a background of many months of close co-operative effort between British and American air forces, the Bell Aircraft Company, and the General Electric Company.

Following years of work on jet propulsion engines dating back to 1933, the RAF in July, 1941, transmitted to the U. S. Army Air Forces information on a jet propulsion engine which had flown successfully two months before. Recognizing the tremendous possibilities of this new form of aircraft power unit, the U. S. Air Forces asked that an engine be sent to this country, and in September, 1941, the engine that had made the first flight was turned over to the General Electric Company.

In less than six months, the first of a number of jet propulsion engines of modified design was ready for test. The Bell Aircraft Company carried out their assignment to build a plane suitable to operate with two of these engines, and in October, 1942, the first successful flight in this country of a plane without propellers was made. Since then several hundred successful flights have been made, both here and in England, many of them at extreme high speeds and high altitudes, all without a single mishap.

Chemists Hear Talk By Madson

Dr. Willard H. Madson, head of the Research Division of the Baltimore branch of the Du Pont de Nemours Company, recently addressed the Chemistry Club of Loyola College. During the course of his talk, Dr. Madson gave his evaluation of chemistry as a life's work, including the average income in various phases of this field.

For the benefit of the future chemists he elaborated on the teaching and research angle of this science, emphasizing that there is a very promising future in chemistry. Dr. Madson is at present working on paint pigments at Du Pont, experimenting chiefly with titanium dioxide.

The occasion was Tuesday afternoon, January 18, during one of the regular meetings of the Chemists' Club.

The Chemistry Club plans to continue its policy of regular guest speakers addressing the members on various phases of the science.

Rector Speaks; Prizes Awarded

"There is a great need for leadership in the world today, and you are now having the opportunity to acquire that quality of leadership here at Loyola," declared the Rev. Edward B. Bunn, S.J., president of Loyola, at the last quarterly assembly.

Father Bunn advised the students to put more attention on their studies, and stressed the necessity of engaging in extra-curricular activities.

The following students were placed on the Dean's List of Distinguished Students for having attained an average of 85% or over in each and every subject for the fourth quarter, ending January 7:

Freshmen: Terrence E. Burke
William A. Meyer, Jr.
Howard J. Strott

The McNeal Gold Medal, for Inorganic Chemistry, was awarded to Thomas Joseph Schmitt.

The Susan Murphy Gold Medal, for the highest general average in Sophomore year, was awarded to Richard Lerch.

The Ryan Gold Medal, for the highest general average in Freshman year, was awarded to Terrence E. Burke.

The Carroll Silver Medal, for Sophomore English, was awarded to Angelo A. Alecce.

The McNeal Silver Medals, for Sophomore and Freshman Religion, respectively, were awarded to Richard H. Lerch, Sophomore, and Terrence E. Burke, Freshman.

Premiums were awarded to students who attained the highest average in the following subjects:

History—Joseph L. Gessler and Robert E. Maizell, ex aequo.

Calculus—Richard H. Lerch.

College French—Jerry Cohen.

College German—Terrence E. Burke.

College Spanish—James V. Shimek.

Freshman English—Melvin Rabinowitz.

Special Talks Scheduled By Speakers' Guild

A speakers' guild will be sponsored by Loyola's Bellarmine Debating Society, it was announced by the Rev. Matthew G. Sullivan, S.J., the moderator of the club.

The president, John Plunkett, and vice-president, John Kernan, are at present working on the details, which include the presentation of symposiums on topics of current interest before the men's organizations of the City.

Modern Topics

"The Case for the Labor Unions" and "A Christian View of the Post-War World" are under consideration as topics for these discussions.

The Knights of Columbus and the various Holy Name Societies of the city are the groups before which these talks will be presented.

Idea Proved Successful

A discussion guild was supported by the Debating society two years ago, when several members of the society presented a symposium on "Christian Marriage", and other topics of current interest, before the Catholic Colleges of the city.

At this time the idea proved extremely successful.

The plan was discontinued shortly after the inception of the accelerated course.

Orchids to Quinn...

Recently an alumnus of the College told us that he was astonished by the orderliness of the library building. This has been due in large part to Mr. Thomas Quinn, who has been the caretaker of the building for the past two months. Mr. Quinn, a butler by trade, came to this country from Ireland, when seventeen. During the last war, he served in the U. S. Army until the Armistice, and was given American citizenship. Mr. Quinn appreciates the cooperation given him both by the faculty and student body.

Jesuit Celebrates Golden Jubilee

(Continued from page 1, col. 3) of sacristan and prefect of the lay brothers. He occupied a room on the third floor of the faculty house, close to the chapel. In spite of his seventy-seven years, Brother Walsh remained active up to the time of his unfortunate accident. His greatest love was the sacristy, and he spent most of his time caring for the altars in the chapel. He fitted perfectly St. Paul's description of a "workman who needeth not be ashamed".

Served Faithfully

Although his work was obscure, as far as the students were concerned, Brother Walsh has served faithfully and well, and was always known to have a cheery word and a ready smile for everyone. THE GREYHOUND in the name of the faculty and the student body extends heartiest congratulations to him on his glorious achievement.

Besides serving at Loyola, Brother Walsh spent ten years at Holy Cross College and eighteen years at St. Joseph's College and Gesu Church in Philadelphia. He came to Evergreen in 1925 and has been stationed here ever since.

Watch-Dog Voted Favorite Column

The semi-annual GREYHOUND Student Poll was completed last week. Tabulation of the ballots representing the opinions of the student body concerning current topics revealed some unusual percentages. Noteworthy was the clean sweep of the field by Bill Dyer in the ranks of local sports announcers.

1. What do you think of President Roosevelt's chances for winning the elections for a fourth term?

With the war in progress	With the war over
Excellent ... 19%	Excellent ... 2%
Good ..... 49%	Good ..... 8%
Fair ..... 20%	Fair ..... 32%
Poor ..... 12%	Poor ..... 58%

These results confirm in general the present Capitol Hill cloakroomers. The opening of the second front with the resultant tensing of public interest might cause the Roosevelt stock to soar.

2. Who is your favorite local sports announcer? Bill Dyer 100% Who is your favorite national sports announcer? Stern 80%.

The daily program of sport tidbits conducted by Dyer with its local color and national interest left quite an impression on the Hounds. Stern's coverage of major sports events marked by his flare for the dramatic was noted in marginal comment.

3. What feature do you read first in THE GREYHOUND? Watchdog 52%; Sports 26%; Others 22%.

Despite the revelations contained in THE GREYHOUND's small talk column, the students apparently enjoy learning how much the columnist knows. In the midst of a hot championship race the Greyhounds evidence considerable interest in the basketball scene. The special interviews were singled out for special comment by several persons answering.

4. How long will the war with Japan continue after the end of the European conflict? 1 year 41%; 2 years 43%; Longer 16%.

The vast majority seem firmly convinced that the present estimates of the heads of the Army and Navy are just a trifle exaggerated. Recent developments in the South Pacific were instrumental in forming the conviction according to additional comment.

5. Do you like Frank Sinatra more or less than you did six months ago? More 52%; Less 48%.

The increase in popularity is partly attributable to the wording used since the answer might denote an increase in disliking Mr. Bowtie from a deep-seated hatred to a cordial contempt. In any event a solid minority showed their feelings.

Spirit of '46

This editorial is addressed to the members of the Freshman class.

Less than two weeks ago you entered Loyola College. Most of your classmates and nearly all of the upperclassmen were strangers to you. It took a while to get to know your teachers. It was more natural than not to keep aloof from the members of your class whom you had not seen before, and to stick with the acquaintances you had made at high school.

The first threat to that clique spirit was the appearance of sophomores on the scene, who, it seemed, were not exactly bent on making friends. That so-called "hazing" has not yet gotten into full swing, but it will. Probably you won't like it; but in the long run you will have had a lot of fun; you will have gotten to know a lot of men you didn't know existed before, fellows who will be your classmates for the next two years.

When that hazing is all over, I wonder if you will have known what it was all about, what it was for. Despite what you may think at first, it was not just a plan so that the sophomores could vent their animal instincts. It was every bit for your own good and the good of your college. If that hazing was successful, it built up in you a class spirit that will never die, even years after graduation, a spirit that will someday be the governing spirit of Loyola College.

Class spirit is a hard term to define. When you think of it, you picture the student body cheering for the Greyhounds over in the Gym on a Saturday night. You think of lasting friendships, and the firm belief that the fellows at your college are the best in the world. You hear people saying, "Loyola College is the best college in the whole United States."

You will be hazed to destroy that spirit of clique which runs so contrary to the course of a profitable college career; to get you at last to know, as those in the classes above you know, that on the campus of Evergreen stands the best little college there is; that in those classrooms teach the best instructors there are, and that by your side are as fine a bunch of fellows as ever walked a campus. Some day the men of your class will run the Student Council, THE GREYHOUND, Debating, I. R. C., and the other after-class activities of Loyola. They will be the veterans on the Greyhound quint and the Green and Gray nine.

The success of those activities, the interest you will take in them, and the success of your own individual college careers, the most important and happiest years of your life, depend almost entirely upon the class spirit that you acquire in your first few weeks at Loyola. Every week must count for two now; get that spirit while you have the chance.

Charles Bagley, III, Esq.,

Dear Mr. Bagley,

I am deeply gratified that you have accepted the chairmanship of the Committee for the War Bond Drive at Loyola College. What makes this drive most worthy of admiration is the spirit of loyalty and patriotism which has inspired the cooperative effort of the Committee and student body. I know of no more valuable experience for young men in this period than such high enthusiastic dedication of your interest, energy, and labor for the greater assurance of your country's victory.

You will never forget the joy of success which will most surely crown your efforts. I know that no Loyola man will hold back from giving and doing all in his power, through sacrifice and service, for the success of this campaign. Be assured of my sincerest appreciation of the work of your Committee in the drive.

Sincerely,

Rev. Edward B. Bunn, S. J.
President of Loyola College

To the Editor of THE GREYHOUND:

Dear Sir:

The advent of a new Freshman class at Loyola may not have stirred you men already out here, but to the Freshmen themselves, of whom I am one, the prospect is indeed magnanimous. There are many inhibitions facing the Freshmen, yet these are no more than what some of you have surmounted. I feel that despite such drawbacks as the acceleration of the courses and our paucity of students, we can still accomplish much, and, more important, begin to accomplish it right away.

As regards our studies, they concern only ourselves. But as regards our status in the College and the way we fit into the general run of things, that, I believe, depends upon the welcome you give us. We have a small student body, and it will require great efforts to maintain the accustomed societies, standards, and traditions of the College. All the more reason why we Freshmen should be immediately incorporated into all the College affairs.

In short we Freshmen deem it an honor to be numbered among the students of Loyola College, and while we ourselves intend to do our best, still we shamelessly ask for all the assistance you can lend us. Then, since this is education, we shall "make the most of it."

Yours very sincerely,
Robert E. Hiltz.

ALUMNI DOINGS

By Edward A. Doehler, '30

Alumni Banquet, February 22

Since the last issue of THE GREYHOUND, it has been necessary to make a slight change in the date of the Annual Alumni Banquet. The Banquet will be held on February 22, Washington's Birthday, at 6:30 P. M. in the Ballroom of the Stafford Hotel. The Chairman of the Committee, Robert A. Botta, '35, promises a most enjoyable evening. The Toastmaster will be James J. Lindsay, State Senator, and the Speaker of the Evening will be a pleasant surprise. This in itself should guarantee a banquet that will be a memorable occasion.

The Banquet Committee, the Class Captains, and members of the Association's Executive Committee are devoting many hours to the preparations for the evening. If you have not returned the postcard that was sent to you, why not do it now? Class Captains are trying to contact all of their groups. If you have not been called, why not help us by calling a few of your classmates, and then reporting to your Captain the number that you will have at the Banquet.

Remember! February 22, 1944, 6:30 P. M., Stafford Hotel, Dress Informal!

ALUMNI DOINGS has been receiving an increasingly large number of most interesting letters from Association members in all parts of the world. Perhaps you have been on the receiving end of a similar correspondence. In the belief that these letters contain much that will interest other members, we are passing on to you a few lines from some that have reached us in recent days.

Father William D. McGonigle, '37, writing in from Alexandria, Va., keeps us in touch with his classmates who are serving with the Army and Navy on many battle-fronts. Thanks to his letter, and others of its kind, we receive the mailing addresses of many Alumni members. In due time they will hear from us. Besides this valuable information, Father Bill has also passed on this interesting comment: "I've had some fine letters from these fellows, letters that should be preserved because they bespeak so eloquently the principles and spirit engendered at Loyola. My friendship for my own classmates has deepened, even though we have been separated for some time. It is this type of man who will help bring a real victory and a real peace. Knowing them is a great source of consolation and inspiration." ALUMNI DOINGS might add, this is true of '37 and of seven times seven other classes of Loyola men!

Some of you will remember Arthur L. James, ex '42. Arthur is now 1st Lt. Arthur L. James, in command of a small photo company "somewhere in the Aleutians". Arthur still remembers Loyola and finds time between his many tasks to write now and then. While he likes his work, he also tells us that: "If this mess is cleaned up in the not too distant future, I expect to return and complete my liberal arts education at Loyola." Bravo, Arthur, and may that day come sooner than we dare to hope!

Eddie Kaltenbach of '42 is a regular correspondent of your editor. Eddie's letters from "somewhere in Italy" are always welcome and always good. Even in far off Italy, Eddie is interested in doings of Loyola. A line from his recent V-mail will show this interest: "That Press Club instituted at Loyola is quite an innovation. This is the first I had heard of it. I am heartily in favor. Some of the most pleasant memories I have of Loyola center around THE GREYHOUND office, especially the memories of the many sturm und drang periods we went through." Besides hard work with the USAAF, Eddie finds time to study Italian and improve his French. What with all the Latin and Greek that he had mastered at Loyola, this should open the way for his occupancy of a language chair at Loyola after victory. How about it, Eddie?

A most welcome addition to our daily mail is a recent letter from William T. Melzer, ex '43. Bill writes from the Pacific area: "In the past three years I have come across three fellows from the College. I met Phil Kieran in January of '41. Paul Wainwright was stationed on the same field as I was, and I accidentally ran into Howard Yakel about six months ago." Bill also has plans for the future: "I fully intend to return to college when this is over. I saw my mistake in quitting, about three days after I had done it. However, now, I feel as though the time was not exactly wasted. I know that I will get much more from college now than if I had finished at first. What I lost in time, I have gained in realizing the value of an education. Now if I were to be called on for an extemporaneous talk, I wouldn't be scared to death as I was when you first called on me in your Public Speaking class about three and a half years ago. That was some ordeal, wasn't it?" It certainly was, Bill—and it will be some thrill to see you back in that classroom (201) after your job in the Pacific is finished with victory!

The Life and Times of "Fats" Waller

Fats Waller, the versatile pianist and composer, recently fell victim to pneumonia and passed away on December 15, 1943. Fats was the son of Reverend Edward Martin Waller, pastor of the Abyssinian Baptist Church in New York City. As a young boy, Fats attended the DeWitt Clinton High School, and also studied piano and organ. Under Leopold Godowsky and Carl Bohm, the aspiring musician received some valuable stage training.

There was a deep feeling for great classical music in Fats' nature, for he knew the masterpieces of Brahms, Listz and Beethoven as well as the latest jazz.

The old Lincoln Theatre on 135th Street gave Fats a chance at developing his professional ability. In this theatre he became the organist. Before this time songwriters had never been much of interest to Fats. Yet he soon produced "Squeeze Me" and a few West Indian songs. Everything went along quietly until Andy Razaf and Fats were given the job of writing the score for a musical called "Keep Shufflin'". From this show emerged the hit songs "How Jazz Was Born" and "My Little Chocolate Bar". After this success Connie and George Immerman had the two songwriters produce a Connie's Inn show, and things began to break for the team.

The first orchestra which used Fats' name was the "Fats Waller and His Buddies" group, back in 1929. This "collection" of musicians had been hurriedly gathered to record "Harlem Fuss" and "Minor Rag". Despite the difficulties under which the band was assembled, the songs became great hits.

The same year found the Waller and Razaf team producing the "Hot Chocolates" show, which was staged in downtown New York. For this musical Fats wrote his famous "Ain't Misbehavin'", which took him about forty-five minutes to compose. Waller was one of the fastest and most prolific song-writers in America. Some of the songs on which Fats collaborated were, "If It Ain't Love", "Gone", "Concentratin'" and "Honeysuckle Rose", to mention only a few. Unfortunately for Fats, his desire to make the grade in Hollywood was never fulfilled.

With his health failing swiftly in the latter months of 1942, Fats' physician warned him of his strenuous work. Regardless of the doctor's advice to relax from his active musician's life, Fats continued to live the pulsating existence to which he had become accustomed as a young man. The pace finally became too much for his physique, and within a few months his very active yet short life was brought to an end. Fats, one of America's greatest musicians and composers, will always be remembered for his consideration of others and his care-free nature.

Duel For The Northland by Kurt Singer. The Northland, consisting of those countries which border the Baltic Sea, is one of the most important yet comparatively unheard of war areas of the present conflict. The power that can control the Dominium Maris Baltici, has command over one of the richest iron ore regions in the world. Moreover, that power rules the important trade routes of the Baltic Sea.

This sector has been included in Hitler's conquest plans, but as yet he has not been able to fulfill that plan. Due to the strategic importance of this region, more espionage work has been done there than in almost any other war area. Among the many agents operating in this territory, the principals were Pflugk-Hartung, who captained the Germans, and Ernst Wollweber, the saboteur extraordinaire of the Russian secret service.

The exciting acts of these enemy agents, fighting each other on foreign soil for the spoils of war, have been retold by Mr. Singer in this important work. The "duel" in the Northlands was and is very momentous, for if the Germans had won this sector they could easily have been the victors in the present war.

United States At War, Vol. 2, published by the Army and Navy Journal.

There has been a great need for a comprehensive and concise summary of the present war for the second year of the United States' participation. This need has now been filled. All of our high ranking military, naval and civilian war leaders as well as many allied leaders have contributed their share of knowledge to make the second volume of United States At War the most valuable book yet published on World War II.

Many civilians have been left in a quandary, trying to understand the seemingly contradictory reports they receive through their newspapers and over their radios. This remarkable resumé will be a great boon to such perplexed Americans.

The Navy At War by Hanson W. Baldwin. Here is a volume on the U. S. Navy which will have lasting interest to all Americans. It is a collection of over one hundred paintings by Naval combat artists depicting naval engagements of the present war. Supplemented with a running commentary, this work presents to the reader both graphical and literary accounts of America's progress in World War II, from the beginning of the "national emergency" up to the invasion of Sicily.

Music For All Of Us by Leopold Stokowski. To the average person, music is something that is to be heard but rarely understood. This situation has been brought about primarily by a lack of books on music written entirely for the laymen. We now have a work that is totally comprehensible to the average listener. Mr. Stokowski has drawn upon his very extensive knowledge of the "universal language of music" to give us a work of brilliant essays written with great lucidity.

THE FIFTH COLUMN

With graduation came the inevitable departure of our fifth columnist, W. Alton McCarthy. Since last summer, he had been foremost in the forces seeking to undermine student morale, weaken resistance, and incite one or more pogroms.

We only hope that we can carry on this evil work with as much energy and true devotion to duty.

Here we go!

Mr. Betowski, who is the proprietor of the only non-profitmaking book store in existence, claims that he makes just enough to keep the electric light in the book store burning. If this is the case there are many customers who wouldn't mind buying their books and stationery in the dark . . . Then there is that little story, (absolutely false of course) about the fellow who bought a book for $2.50, got as far as the door and discovered that he had asked for the wrong book. He was allowed $1.00 on it as a used book. All lies, though, wicked lies!

Running With The Hounds

By Bill Meyer

Freshmen, notice!

Since the Freshmen are not going to have any definite Physical Training periods until the beginning of March, they are earnestly urged to use all the facilities of the new and well-equipped Gymnasium, situated at the North end of the playing field. You can journey over there during your lunch period, any free period, or any time after school. There you can spend whatever free time you may have from your pressing schedule by watching or engaging in intramural basketball games and wrestling matches. In the recreation room on the first floor there are pool tables, chess sets, ping-pong tables, and a radio. Another recent addition in the Gymnasium is an indoor swimming pool which can be used all year round. The equipment room contains footballs, basketballs, indoor bats and balls, lacrosse sticks and balls, and handballs to be used in an adjacent outdoor court. Any of the above articles can always be borrowed.

With the lessening of inter-collegiate sports because of the lack of transportation between the colleges and the scarcity of neighboring competition, most of the colleges throughout the country have expanded since the war their usual intramural program to include and benefit everyone of their student body. Here, at Loyola, the policy is to have at least one intramural sport in progress every season of the year. At present, basketball and wrestling occupy the lime-light. These will be followed later in the year by softball, track, tennis, handball and football.

Hounds soon to close league play

With all of the difficult conference basketball games played, the double-header with both Saint Mary's and Catholic University, the Hounds shouldn't have very much trouble with the four remaining league contests. According to the pre-Mid-season scores of the Delaware and Gallaudet games, these two foes should be among the Green and Gray's easier victims, while the return engagements with Hopkins University and Washington College should not prove to be too great of a stumbling block for the ever improving Greyhounds.

Mohler Urges Frosh Activity

To the Freshmen of '46:

We of the veteran student body know that college is going to be very trying for you men at first. Even now you have probably noticed its great difference from high school. I'm not one to preach on the subject, but I would like to lend a helping hand.

First and foremost, I realize, are your studies. But don't forget that extra-curricular activities are nearly as important as class work. Immediately on your entrance into college, you are welcome into all of Loyola's after-class activity—yes, welcome; men to keep these activities running are needed now more than ever.

I'm out to bat for the sports end of after-class work. Physical training and sports are helpful both mentally and physically. Are they character builders?—in answer to that let me ask how you can make a success of life if you cannot get along agreeably with your fellowmen? That is what sports teach you.

The A. A. has arranged various activities for the school, and now that you are matriculating you are expected to help out wholeheartedly.

Please cooperate to the utmost, and let's make the best of our friendships and education.

Basketball games are played every week and the team needs your support. You are men of Loyola now—let's show the team and Lefty that we have faith in them.

Rhoads Paces Rambler Five In Intramural

Of the intramural sports, basketball and wrestling, now being played at the College, greater interest has been shown in basketball. The ten teams which comprise the league play their scheduled games during the noon-day lunch period. Since there are only five tilts played in one week, games will be scheduled until the latter part of March. This will give all the teams an opportunity to play each other at least twice.

Rippers Take Opener

The first of the contests saw the Sophomore Rippers swamp The Alpha Kappas of the same class, 23-3. At no time during the battle did the Alpha Kappas show any strength in defense against their stronger opponent. Walt Simms came through to take the scoring honors with seven counters.

On the following day, January 24th, a strong Rambler five easily triumphed over the hard fighting Basketeer team, 30-5. Bill Thaler, from his pivot spot, was the ace for the victors by ringing up seven baskets. Art Rhoads was next in line with a total of eight points. At the present, Art is high scorer of the entire league.

Mt. St. Mary's Whips Loyola

Loyola dropped its first conference contest in five starts in a close hard fought battle, before the largest home attendance this season, to the more experienced V-12 men of Mount Saint Mary's, 44-39.

The two teams staged a scoring duel in the first half with the Mountaineers on top by two points at the end of the period. The last period was also waged evenly until the closing minutes when the Mount squeezed out in front and then prevented the Hounds from scoring by freezing the ball.

Jim Jordan, stellar performer for the Mountaineers and a strong contender for the Maryland Open-State high-scoring laurels, paced the winning quint with eight field goals and two foul shots. Wish Galvin, former member of the Loyola squad, was instrumental in his team's victory when he tallied two field goals and two from the foul line near the end of the game to gain the winning margin.

Although the Greyhounds were defeated, they waged an even battle against the highly-touted Mount Saint Mary's five. Bill Schanberger was high-scorer for the valiant Hounds with twelve points while Tom Gisriel netted ten points followed by Ed McGarry's nine.

stressed the necessity of participation in intramural activities, next in importance only to studies.

He also told them of the advantage that they have in going to a day college when he said, "When you go away to a boarding school you sleep on a bed as hard as a board. I know because I did it. Here you can go home after class but I urge you to stay around and play various sports. In this way you show school spirit and build yourself up physically at the same time."

The Athletic Director concluded his speech by stating that the new class must completely forget all of their former prep-school cliques while on the campus, and devote all their loyalty to their new Alma Mater.

Cardinals Trim Hounds, 49-29

The Hounds dropped their second conference game to a strong and experienced Catholic University quint by a decision of 49-29 at the Cardinals court in Washington.

The entire first half was dominated by the Green and Gray, but in the closing minutes of the first half the Cardinals fought their way within one point of the Hounds' leading tally. Jim Lacy was very closely guarded and was unable to score his usual tally of points. The score at the end of the first half was in favor of the Evergreen quint 24-23.

Unable to gain a lead in the first half, the Catholic University switched their defense to a three-two zone which developed into a hazard for the Hounds. This change of play held the Hounds to only five points in the entire second half. The Cards' attack increased, and they went on a rampage scoring basket after basket.

Even though the new defense of the Washington team seemed impossible to disrupt, the Green and Gray quint didn't stop fighting until the final whistle and gave the Capitol quint a hard fought game.

Hounds Swamp Delaware, 61-28

The Green and Gray squad swamped the University of Delaware quintet, 61-28, to extend their conference victories to four straight in the Delaware fieldhouse.

Paced by young Jim Lacy, who netted eight action shots and three from the foul line for high scoring honors, the Hounds encountered little opposition from the Blue Hens. Loyola got off to an early start and at half time they were out in front, 32-7.

Gene O'Conor tallied twelve points, followed by Ed McGarry and Bill Schanberger who sank ten points each. Bill Davis showed a great improvement with his exceptional work of handling the rebounds off the back-boards.

The Rippers came back again to add another victory by trouncing the Sprint Quinters 21-9. This time, Frank Goldsmith took the high scoring honors with nine points. Lou Franz of the losers racked up six points for his team.

Gaudreau Scores Nineteen

Jerry Gaudreau seems to be the star of the league for any one game. It was he, who accounted for more than half of the score, when his team, the Downbeats, defeated the Collegians 32-14. The Downbeats

Greyhounds Top Haverford, 64-55

Seeking revenge for their previous defeat, the Greyhounds traveled to Haverford where they outpointed the Quakers, 64-55 for their first non-conference win of the season. Jim Lacy was high-scorer for the Hounds with eighteen points while Tom Gisriel and Bill Schanberger looped in thirteen and eleven tallies respectively.

Loyola emerged from a high-scoring first half battle with an eight point lead. The Haverford five staged a stauncher fight during the last period as the two squads battled on an even keel. Big gun for the Haverford team was George Montgomery who tossed in thirteen field goals and two foul shots to score more than half of his team's total.

predominated play throughout the entire game, and at no time did the Collegians give them any trouble.

Ramblers Win Again

The Sprint Quinters went down in defeat for the second time as the Ramblers won their second game. As the whistle blew to end the game, the score stood 41-10. Herb Prescott, Frank Cashen, and Art Rhoads were the main sparks for the victors. Prescott and Cashen both accounted for ten points apiece. But again, Art Rhoads, with his height, scored eight baskets, thus taking high scoring honors for the day. The Ramblers held the losers to two points in each of the three remaining quarters.

STARS-IN-STRIPES

Robert J. McElroy

Robert J. McElroy, U. S. N. R., a graduate of Loyola College in October, 1943, is now stationed at Northwestern University taking V-7 training. Upon completing his present course, he will be given a commission in the United States Navy.

High School Career

Before entering the college, Bob attended Loyola High School where he participated in numerous activities, both scholastic and athletic. He was a member of the Knights of the Blessed Sacrament, the Sodality, and Dramatics, and in his senior year was elected president of the Student Council.

In the field of athletics he won positions on the varsity basketball and ice-hockey squads. He was fullback and captain of the Blue and Gold eleven, and was chosen on the All-Maryland lacrosse team.

Life At Loyola

At Loyola College he had many accomplishments. His main sport was lacrosse, playing attack for three seasons. In 1941 he was the spearhead of the Green and Gray attack, and rose to national prominence when he was given a position on the All-American lacrosse squad.

As a freshman he was elected Vice-President of his class. He was also a member of the International Relations Club, and was the Advertising Manager of THE GREYHOUND. His magnetic personality and eagerness to help others finally resulted in his election as President of the Student Council.

Although lacrosse took up most of his free time, Bob earned a starting berth on the Loyola "B" squad basketball team. During the summer months he kept in condition by playing tennis and swimming.

Lacy Scores 8 Out Of 13

After a seven minute lapse at the start of the game which saw Johns Hopkins enjoying a 5 point advantage, the Loyola Greyhounds solidly slammed the hapless Jays, 60-33. Jim Lacy led the scorers with 18 points of which 16 were from the floor.

Loyola fans were frightened in the early moments by the floor play of the Blue Jays as they blanked the Hounds for the opening three minutes. At seven minutes Hopkins led 7-2 but for the next five minutes the Green team steamrollered a crumbling defense to go on top, 16-7. Ed McGarry from the cut, Jim Lacy underneath and Gene O'Conor outside, carried the brunt of the attack which resulted in a 25-15 margin as the Hounds rested at the half.

Substitutes Score

After a momentary respite the Jays were subjected to a continuation of the scoring spree which marked the first period. Lacy during the course of the game dumped in 8 of his 13 shots. Coach Lefty Reitz sent in substitutes freely after the Green team's lead mounted to 15 points. Bill Davis, replacement for Tommy Gisriel, tallied 9 points, with the other pivot man, Earl Brannan, contributing 4 more to the rout.

Conference Win

The victory left the Hounds with a record of 4 won and 3 lost in Mason-Dixon play. Since then they have met Washington College and Catholic University in conference tilts.

Greyhound Asks College Support Fourth War Loan

How about it, men of Loyola, are we behind the Fourth War Loan Drive?

Then let's show that we are, by additional purchases of war bonds or stamps during this period. They are on sale, as always, at the Treasurer's office on the first floor of the Library Building.

Loyola men of less than a year ago are poised for the great blow against Europe. Loyalumni are in Australia, New Guinea, and New Britain, as well as with our fleet in all parts of the world. They are willing to give their lives—they only ask for the weapons with which to do the job.

So how about it? Make it a regular habit to buy one or two war stamps every week for the duration. And during this Fourth War Loan, buy extra stamps as often as you possibly can.

It would be enough to give this money to our men in service who are fighting to protect us, but we are not even asked to do that. We are only asked to make a loan, and a loan with a high rate of interest. For every three dollars we loan the government, we will receive four in return.

Last year $10,000 in war bonds and $600 in war stamps were sold through the Treasurer's office at Loyola. Thus far this year, sales have been disappointingly low.

The Fourth War Loan will be over soon. If you haven't bought that extra bond yet, buy it today!

subject, I have found that an alloy of chromium, nickel, and iron tends to produce the most accurate weights and, I believe, that further tests with this alloy will prove most satisfactory."

Studied Gases in 1918

This latest discovery is but one of the many contributions Dr. Thornton has made to science. During the last World War, Dr. Thornton was engaged by the government to do experimental work upon substances as bases for toxic gases. For many years following the last war, Dr. Thornton engaged in research upon various ores and in 1927 published a monograph, Titanium, under the auspices of the American Chemical Association. At the outbreak of the present war, the doctor was called upon by the United States Bureau of Mines to do experimental work in the field of explosives, but failing health forced him to resign his post.

Sophomore Ultimatum Issued; Pups Try Rear-Guard Action

February 14 is generally associated with hearts and flowers, with sweet terms of mutual endearment, but not at Loyola. Mike Molloy, Sophomore president, promises that the date will be remembered by the members of the first year class. Jim O'Neill, heading the Sophomore Vigilance Committee, assures the student body that Monday will rank with Sadie Hawkins Day for extracurricular festivities. The Freshman class anxiously awaits developments while fighting a rear-guard action. In short, hazing of Pups begins early Monday morning.

The Sophomore class has issued an ultimatum that henceforward border incidents will be dealt with severely. In his proclamation, Mike Molloy insisted that "any further aggression by members of the inferior first year class will result in dire consequences. For two weeks I have been the supreme court of the class. Let the paddles swing where they may. Let Freshmen eat from mantlepieces. Sophomores, Sieg Heil!" The aggression mentioned in the President's address referred to the recent case of a first year man's refusal to drive an upperclassman to Philadelphia for the Villanova game. The Pup pleaded forgiveness because of the limitation of his gas supply to one A coupon which prevented his accommodating his questioner.

Freshmen, in an unorganized reply to the ultimatum, offered to (1) kow-tow to the Sophomore class each morning before class, (2) allow the second year men free rein at the cafeteria counter by waiting until they had sated their hunger and thirst before they ate, (3) Supply transportation for all sophomores to basketball games, track meets, swim meets and dances. This reply marked a new low in abject submission to a superior will in the history of hazing at Loyola.

In reply, Sophomore Gestapo head, James O'Neill said, "The bold demands of the freshmen will never, never, never, be met! Force will be met with force! The Freshman class has asked for war. Let the paddling be upon them." The resultant wave of terror, carrying in its wake all that blitzkrieg hazing means, is to begin Monday.

Progress has been made by the first year men in the form of an alliance with the third year class. A mutual assistance pact signed by men from both classes was attended by impressive ceremonies last Wednesday. Informants hint that the alliance may be impractical since the juniors are the perennial fifth columnists in the traditional hazing activities.

The following other officers for the coming academic year were also elected:

Vice-President: Richard Lerch; Secretary - Treasurer: Charles Baker.

Mr. Joseph May, moderator of the Club, is arranging for outside guest speakers to lecture to the members.

Mr. Dawkins, Professor of Mathematics at Loyola, addressed the club on "Mathematics of Symmetry" at the meeting following elections of officers. Papers on the History of Mathematics will be featured in the course of the year.

If possible, joint meetings with the Mathematics Clubs of other colleges will be conducted. Last year the Mathematics Club had such a meeting with the Club of Notre Dame of Maryland.
